The referee question is not settled as yet, reports to the contrary not-withstanding. Jack Kearns, who insists on having a voice in the naming of the third man in the ring, arrived here today to chin about the question with Promoter Rickard.

Larry Williams, the 180-pound

NEW YORK, May 31.—The thing that seems to bother boxing fans most in the coming championship battle is whether the Frenchman is big enough for Dempsey.

Billy Delaney, who brought both Corbett and Jeffries from obscurity to the top always claimed that a man weighing-180 pounds was big enough to lick the huskiest slugger alive.

2 to 1 Favorite Over Georges

NEW YORK, May 31.- Dempsey is a 2 to 1 favorite over Carpentier, according to a number of wagers which have been laid with Brooklyn.

Bets have also been made at even money that the fight will not go the twelve rounds. Odds in the coming Leonard-Rocky Kansas meeting are 2 to 1 in favor of Leonard.

box and he knew how to make the other fellow waste his energy. Joe Walcott, a welterweight who wasn't much tailer than a water hydrant, often fought men weighing 200 pounds and standing well over beaten many a big fellow in the ring. Bomb Wells is the biggest man he toppled. Wells towered over Georges and outweighed him quite a chunk yet the Frenchman dropped the lime juicer for the fatal count twice. Dempsey will outweigh Carpentier ten or fifteen pounds and will stard maybe two inches taller. It isn't much of an advantage but its some Carpentier doesn't think, that Demp-sey's extra weight will bother him a bit. He is used to fighting big men.

JACK FIGHTS BIG ONES. Dempsey, on the other hand, is no accustomed to fighting men smaller than himself. There's the rub, if there's a rub coming. Dempsey's best fight was made against his biggest opponent—Willard. It was his easiest too. The first punch he landed practically settled the fight. He had everything his own way after that. ent-Willard. It was his easiest He was punching upward the way a man punches a bag. Old timers say that a man can hit harder punching at a target above his shoulders. Dempsey has dore that in most of his fights. It's not easy to punch down—that is if a man is shorter or if he fights in a crouching position. Try it.

The man's right, he said.

SAY CARPENTIER "MUST WIN, BUT FRENCHMEN WON'T BET

By C. F. BERTELLI.

PARIS, May 31.—If you listen to the friends of Georges Carpentier you will learn that he "must win."

However, I have been unable to place fifty cents with any of the Frenchman's enthusiastic supporters. They seem to draw the line on
